A letter from the president-Greg Stinson

Fellow Kiwanians -

As you are aware, the Pancake Breakfast, our first fundraiser of the year, is on Saturday, February 4, 2012. That means we only have one more Kiwanis meeting before the event. Chris Butler and Todd Martin have been collecting money for three weeks and are about $1,800.00 behind where they were this time last year.

For those of you who have turned your money in, thank you! For those of you that have not, we desperately need your help in selling your tickets and getting your money turned in. If you cannot sell them, please consider buying them and giving them to friends as gifts. We need each of our fundraisers to be successful and this can only be done if all members participate.

Remember, it's all about the kids! Greg

All you can eat!

Wright Square

Wright Square is the second square, moving south into the city from the river, and it contains many interesting historical relics. Laid out in 1733, it was originally named Percival Square, for Right Honorable John, Lord Viscount Percival, Earl of Egmont, the Georgia Trust President. The ward surrounding it was also named after him and continues today as Percival Ward. The square was later re-named Wright Square to honor the last Royal Governor of Georgia, Sir James Wright. However, it has also been commonly called "Court House Square" or "Post Office Square". A courthouse has stood on the square since the time of Oglethorpe and in the early days the square was a gathering place full of public activity. Due to the presence of the courthouse, monthly auctions of livestock, government bonds, furniture and other goods were held in Wright Square.
